

Snapshots of Volunteers and Staff Caring for Nisqually Land Trust Properties

Volunteers working together to plant a shore pine at Powell Creek

WSC Volunteer Coordinator Sarah conducting a plant survival survey at Lackamas Flats

Stewardship Assistant Courtney hard at work planting Newly-planted Oregon grape in bloom at Powell Creek

Stewardship staff and volunteers pulling invasive English Ivy at Red Salmon Creek

Stewardship staff and volunteers with bags of vinca they removed from Mount Rainier Gateway

Stewardship Assistant Courtney planting a Douglas fir at Lackamas Flats

Volunteers dig up invasive blackberry near the Mashel River

A Nisqually River Education Project student loosening the roots of a tree in preparation for planting

WSC Volunteer Coordinator Sarah teaches volunteers how to install plant protector tubes

Volunteers after a sunny Saturday morning planting at Powell Creek

Volunteers after completing a Girl Scout Silver Award Project planting at Yelm Shoreline

Land Steward Addie paints a livestake to discourage hungry beavers

A tree planted, tubed, mulched, and ready to grow!

High tide in the wetland on a beautiful day on Anderson Island

Addie, Courtney and Sarah after a morning of cleaning up trash at Yelm Shoreline

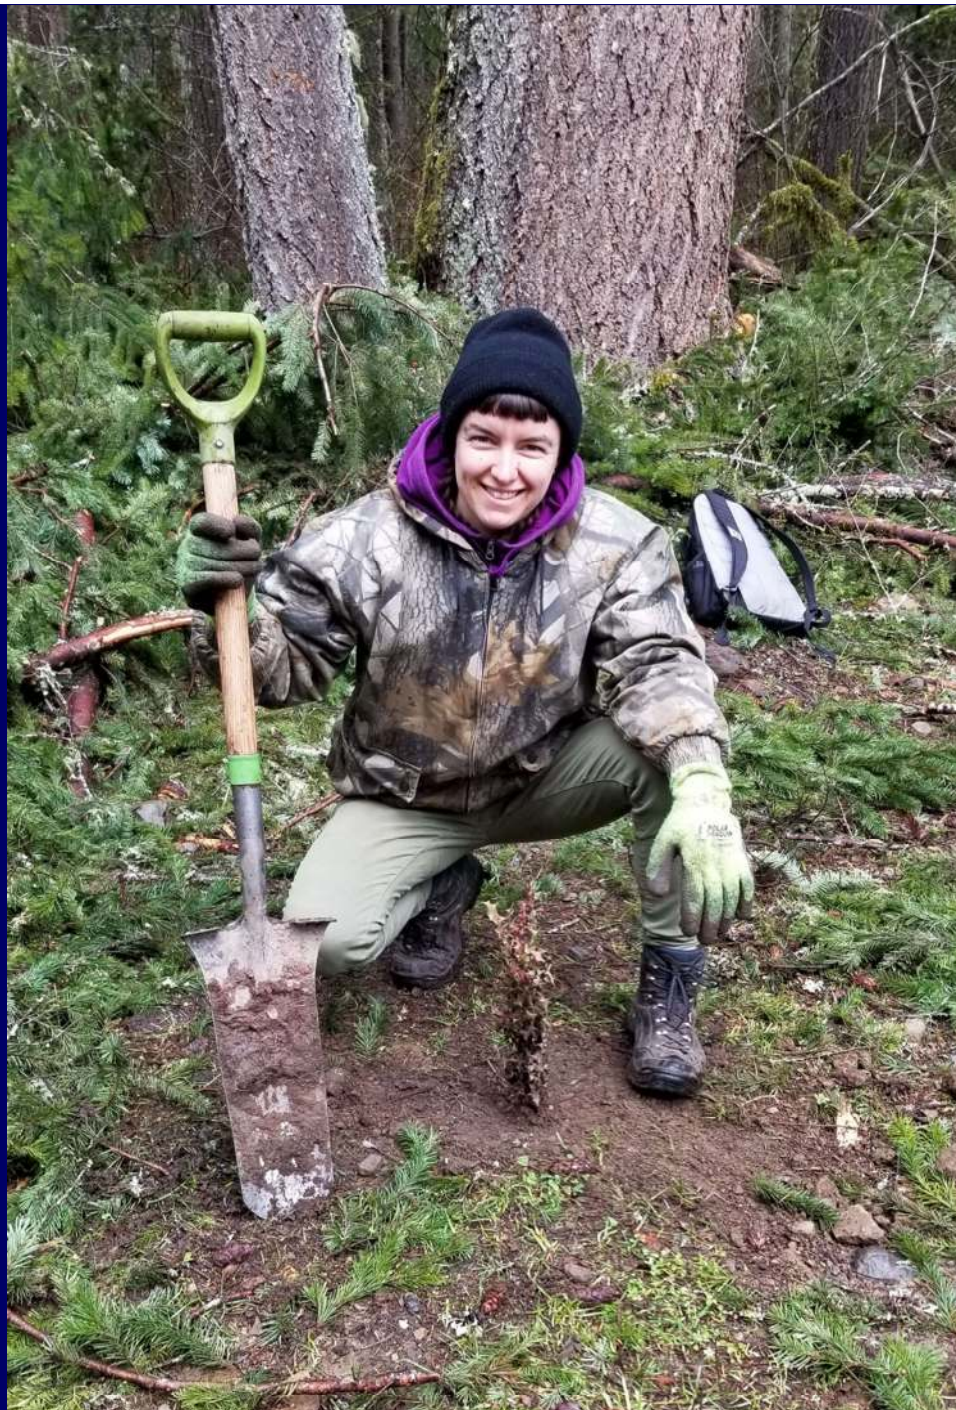

A small but mighty group of staff and volunteers after spending a morning removing invasive blackberry

Volunteers and staff enjoy a view of the Nisqually at the 2019 United Way Day of Caring

Nisqually River Education Project students plant Oregon grape at Powell Creek

Office Manager Rylee in the field for a day of tree planting at Mount Rainier Gateway

Nisqually River Education Project student planting at Powell Creek

A view of the Nisqually River near Yelm

BSA Scouts install bird boxes at Ohop Creek

A volunteer with a bare-root plant at Middle Mashel

Volunteer Coordinator
Sarah appreciating trees on a Hogum Bay site visit

A volunteer pulls invasive blackberry at Yelm Shoreline

Volunteers hard at work planting on a chilly morning at Middle Mashel